In the time it takes you to insert a dollar bill or swipe a credit card, you can clean your vending equipment of dirt, dust, oils, and other contaminants. These pollutants, present everywhere, can be removed through quick and easy maintenance. Vending convenience keeps customers happy and returning. The first time your customer does not receive his product from your vending machine is when they begin to go elsewhere. In most cases, simply maintaining a clean bill acceptor will ensure that the customer gets his vended product. You not only give them what they want but they know where to go to get more.
